

why there are such levels of injustice, maternal death and violence. South Africa has very beautiful women who need to be considered as important because a woman builds a nation.

CHALLENGES FACING WOMEN IN SOUTH AFRICA

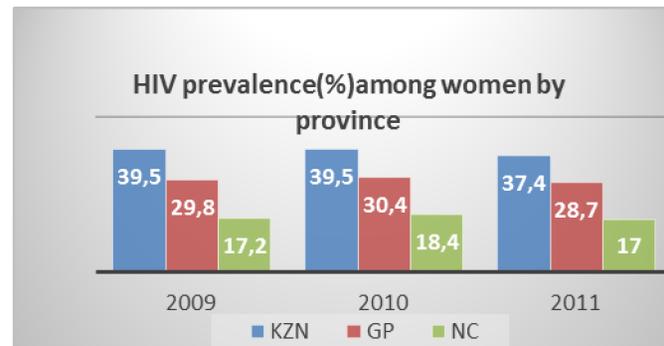

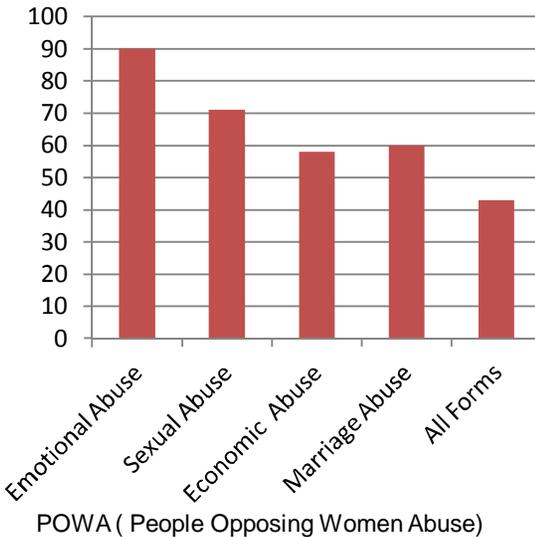

Violence against women in South Africa

Efforts to fight violence against women can take many forms and access to justice, or lack thereof, for such violence varies greatly depending on the justice system. International and regional instruments are increasingly used as the basis for national legislation and policies to eradicate violence against women. The South African government is working on programs such as 16 days of activism to reduce the violence rate. Since these programs were implemented HIV prevalence among women remained relatively stable

National Health Database

South African national HIV survey

